

Bioresonance Biofeedback

Bioresonance is a phenomenon whereby all living organisms and their components emit measurable electromagnetic waves, the frequency of which is dependent on their physiological state. In holistic terms, the body is construed as a system of energy and its cells, organs, and tissues which are subject to changes from external energy sources, noxious stimuli or challenges of various pathogens, allergens, chemicals, and bio-chemicals. In the altered or diseased state, this normal resonance energy is usually lower than in the normal state.

This bioresonance and the changes in bioresonance are measured with the help of Bioresonance machines or devices, such as the one by Oberon Biofeedback. These are very accurate and highly calibrated machines that with the help of very sophisticated NLS software provide a digital scan of the tissues and cells in the healthy and diseased states. Furthermore, these bioresonance biofeedback machines have sophisticated technology to provide and supplement bioresonance energy externally and thus bringing the tissues to normal healthy levels. This then allows the cells, tissues, organs, and body to heal and recover to a normal healthy state.

Quantum Biofeedback Therapy is a naturopathic practice that measures the body's energetic components and helps detect and measure both chemical and physiological imbalances caused by a prolonged period of stress from a variety of sources.

Most adult population suffer a variety of adverse effects of stress such as insomnia, anxiety, depression, reduced abilities and decision-making skills, weight gain and more. It usually starts gradually and then becomes a chronic problem defying easy solutions and can be extremely frustrating and even debilitating.

Quantum Biofeedback therapy is a procedure that promotes healing of the body and mind by mildly and non-invasively re-balancing the electromagnetic energy (bioresonance) levels to the normal state.

It is made possible by a machine like Oberon Biofeedback that measures and scans the body organs and tissues for their Bioresonance energy levels to determine the extent of stress damage and then rebalances and harmonizes the bioresonance energy imbalances with externally supplied electromagnetic waves.

How Does Biofeedback Work?

Each organ, tissue, and cell in our body has a distinct frequency which is made possible by the rotation of atoms in the cells.

When instructions are sent to the body from the brain they use the spinal cord to send those instructions using nerves and other molecular aids. As long as the connection between the brain and the spine is intact, biofeedback systems can use the brain to listen in and pick up the information.

Bio-electrical activity of brain neurons is amplified so signals which are practically undetectable by statistical fluctuations, can not only be detected but also isolated and decoded thanks to biofeedback therapy systems.

Good biofeedback systems, like Oberon, can trace the changes in pathology and infections by observing the characteristics of these wavelengths and the changes in the tissues and cells of the body.

Biofeedback therapy is administered using brain neurons again. Frequencies which were detected by the system can be reversed and sent back to balance out the issues and bring them back to health.

Benefits Biofeedback Therapy

- it is non-invasive
- it does not use chemicals/bio-chemicals or harsh drugs that can cause many side effects
- enhances self-awareness and control and promotes a general sense of wellbeing

Biofeedback Therapy

Biofeedback Therapy utilizes the same methods as Biofeedback body scanning in that it uses the brain and central nervous system to apply the therapeutic frequencies to the person VIA Bio-resonance headset.

Oberon consists of a database which houses all frequencies of pathogens, microorganisms, and healthy tissue as well.

When we give biofeedback therapy, we apply the appropriate frequencies to the organ and tissues for recover or destructive frequencies to the harmful microorganisms occupying vital organs.
